Photography for Patients Facing Terminal Illness

Offered by Type A Images, Amanda Reseburg

In 2008, I lost my grandmother after a battle with colon cancer. At the end, my grandmother was cared for by Beloit Regional Hospice and before that we had been introduced to the services offered by the Transitions program. While the loss of this important part of my life was indescribably hard, I have continued to be grateful for the support offered to us by the caregivers at Beloit Regional Hospice and for the final moments that our family had with this incredibly special human being. It truly was a privilege for me to be able to care for the woman who had given so much to me.

As a professional photographer, I document special events and those moments that perhaps would go unnoticed but become very special upon reflection. It is my hope that I will be able to assist other patients and families as they embark on this very personal end of life journey. I specialize in documentary photography which captures moments in life as they are happening, rather than formalized, studio portraits. It would be my pleasure to offer to join your family in capturing the special moments that occur as families and friends draw close around a terminally ill loved one. These photographs can be taken in the home of the patient, the home of a family member, or a location that has been special to your family. It could be a family meal, a game of cards with neighbors and friends or just being with you as you spend a day caring for your loved one and each other.

These photographs would be available to you on a disc with a photography release for printing at no cost. To discuss the details of this and to schedule a date, please contact
